Teaching Fellow in Economics, Economics Division, Leeds University Business School

Do you have the ability to motivate and inspire learners? Do you have a clear commitment to creating and delivering an excellent student experience? Are you an experienced Economics teacher with excellent communication skills and a real passion for teaching the subject?

We are looking for an outstanding candidate to join the Economics Division of Leeds University Business School during an exciting phase in our development. Our highly popular and vibrant teaching programmes are expanding whilst our research activities continue to grow. The Division's strong research focus supports our leadership and membership of several high-profile, large-scale research initiatives including projects in the areas of financialisation, infrastructure provision, food systems and the Cities research theme of the University of Leeds. The Division is connected via teaching and research to other faculties at the University of Leeds and is pursuing a distinctive and high-impact interdisciplinary agenda.

To support these developments we are seeking to appoint a Teaching Fellow with a strong commitment to undertaking excellent teaching and the ability to contribute to the enhancement of the student experience on our undergraduate and postgraduate programmes. You should have a track-record of excellent teaching as well as a strong commitment to student learning and teaching. You should have experience of lecturing and tutoring at undergraduate level. Beyond teaching on core modules, you will assist with student support and development activities.

What does the role entail?

As a Teaching Fellow in Economics at Grade 7, your main duties will include:

- Undertaking teaching at different levels, contributing to assessment and examinations as well as module design, review and quality assurance mechanisms
- Providing support and guidance to students, providing timely feedback, acting as a personal tutor, resolving issues and/or referring to specialist parties, where appropriate;
- Contributing to the design, development, planning and review of modules and programmes;
- Developing and utilising innovative approaches to teaching and learning individually and collaboratively;
- Working with our students as members of a learning community and with colleagues with responsibility for a year-group to provide world class education and an excellent student experience;
- Maintaining and enhancing standards of student attainment at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels;
- Contributing to student enhancement in programme delivery, feedback and quality assurance;
- Developing a portfolio of scholarship activities in a relevant area and engaging with scholarship opportunities within the University and externally;
- Contributing effectively to the administrative process and committee structures of the Faculty and as appropriate the wider University.

As a Senior Teaching Fellow in Economics at Grade 8, your main duties will include:

- Undertaking research-led teaching at different levels, including assessment and examinations, leading module design, and contributing towards review and quality assurance mechanisms;
- Providing support and guidance to students, providing timely feedback, acting as a personal tutor, resolving issues and/or referring to specialist parties, where appropriate;
- Playing a significant role in the design, development, planning and review of modules and programmes;
- Developing and utilising innovative approaches to teaching and learning individually and collaboratively;
- Working with our students as members of a learning community and with colleagues with responsibility for a year-group to provide world class education and an excellent student experience;
- Maintaining and enhancing standards of student attainment at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels;
- Ensuring processes such as programme delivery, feedback and quality assurance are delivered effectively to enhance the student experience;
- Contributing effectively to the administrative processes and committee structures of the School/Faculty including taking on leadership roles and managing initiatives which facilitate School, Faculty or University performance or business.

These duties provide a framework for the role and should not be regarded as a definitive list. Other reasonable duties may be required consistent with the grade of the post.

What will you bring to the role?

As a Teaching Fellow at Grade 7, you will have:

- A PhD in an Economics field (or you will be near to completion, i.e. you will have submitted the initial version of your thesis);
- Experience of teaching in a University environment;
- Ability to interact with students to enhance the student experience;
- Experience of providing support and guidance to students;
- Willingness to participate in scholarly academic engagement relevant to the field;
- The ability to work across a range of areas, establishing effective working relationships;
- A high level of interpersonal and communication skills;
- Demonstrable creativity, a desire to innovate in teaching delivery and the ability to inspire others;
- The ability to work under pressure and deal with conflicting demands.

In addition, as a Senior Teaching Fellow at Grade 8, you will also have:

- A teaching profile and approach that reflects professional development and engagement with best practice;
- Experience in module planning and review;
- Experience of engagement in enhancement activities;
- Knowledge of programme delivery processes;
- A track record of scholarship activity.

You may also have:

- Commercial experience and/or links with commercial organisations;
- Ability to build partnerships with industrial, professional and public sector organisations;
- Experience of obtaining funding to support scholarship individually or collaboratively.

Additional information

The Economics Division represents and professes a realistic and policy-relevant economics that seeks to address and resolve real-world challenges through high impact research and research-led teaching. It promotes understanding of a distinctively broad range of perspectives within the economics discipline and engages flexibly with other disciplines – business-related, social sciences, and STEM – in order to solve complex real-world problems and to lead large-scale interdisciplinary research projects.

The Economics Division, which has close to 30 faculty members, is experiencing an expansion in both its teaching and research activity. This post will support the continuation of high quality delivery in these two key areas.

The Division provides a number of highly popular undergraduate programmes in Economics, Business Economics and Economics and Finance as well as supporting a full range of joint honours programmes and contributing economics modules for other programmes across the University. The quality of our provision is high. For example, we rank third among Russell Group universities (behind Oxford and Cambridge, Guardian League Table, 2016) in terms of the quality of our economics teaching and student experience. The Economics Division also has dedicated MSc programmes in Economics and a large and vibrant community of PhD students.

The teaching duties of this post will contribute to delivery on the above programmes and will include both core theory and applied topics. We are seeking candidates with experience of leading modules in economics and who have a track record of delivery of high quality, innovative and inspiring teaching. The ability to supervise undergraduate and postgraduate research dissertations is also required.
