Lecturer in Midwifery

School of Healthcare, Academic Unit of Midwifery, Social Work, Pharmacy and Counselling and Psychotherapy, Faculty of Medicine and Health

Are you ready to join an enthusiastic and academically talented team? Do you want to be involved in teaching undergraduate and post graduate students? Are you a registered midwife with the Nursing and Midwifery Council or eligible for registration?

The School of Healthcare (SHC) provides undergraduate and postgraduate pre-registration education for nursing (adult, child and mental health), midwifery, social work and psychotherapy and counselling; postgraduate and professional development for pharmacists, advanced clinical practitioners, assessors in practice and other NHS workforce priority areas.

Our applied health research has five themes that inform our curricula and educational provision: Long Term Conditions; Maternal Child and Family Health; Medicines Optimisation; Mental Health; People Systems and Services.

The School of Healthcare's overall aim is the creation, dissemination and application of knowledge to improve the health and wellbeing of communities, families and individuals by way of innovation in education, research and scholarship.

As a Lecturer in Midwifery you will contribute particularly to pre-registration midwifery education, supervise and support postgraduate taught students and lead developments in this role.

As a Lecturer in Midwifery you will have an MSc (PhD or equivalent is desirable), and experience in educational provision. You will also be a registered midwife with the Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC), or be eligible for registration, have practice experience, and have a teaching qualification or be willing to undertake one when in post.

What does the role entail?

As a Lecturer in Midwifery (at Grade 7 level), your main duties will be to:

- Provide innovative undergraduate and postgraduate research-led teaching and assessment, using technology where appropriate, and regularly respond to student feedback;

- Contribute, or lead where appropriate, to the planning, development, delivery and review of modules and programmes, and aligned administrative and quality assurance mechanisms;
- Provide tutorial support and academic supervision to undergraduate and postgraduate students and provide appropriate and timely feedback to students, referring when appropriate;
- Contribute to selection of students, administration and committees where appropriate;
- Contribute towards development of curricula where appropriate;
- Be actively involved in the generation and dissemination of scholarship e.g. relating to student education, practice, knowledge transfer or knowledge generation via projects or PhD supervision where appropriate;
- Be actively involved in, or lead where appropriate, initiatives (sustained or one-off) as requested that support School' programmes, priorities and performance

What will you bring to the role?

As a Lecturer in Midwifery, at Grade 7, you will have:

- Master's degree in a relevant subject
- Fellowship of the Higher Education Authority or similar or willing to achieve;
- Current active registration with the Nursing and Midwifery Council;
- Excellent verbal and written communication skills;
- Evidence of a developing scholarship portfolio relevant to the School. For example through presentation of papers or posters, contribution to internal or external funding streams supporting scholarships / research network activities, developing practice, guidelines or policies;
- Evidence of a developing innovative undergraduate and or postgraduate research-led teaching, using technology and evidence of responding to student feedback
- Experience and willingness towards supporting students in relevant practice;
- The ability to motivate and engender enthusiasm in others, as evidenced, for example, in student feedback obtained from teaching;
- Knowledge and awareness of current educational technological advances and a willingness and ability to incorporate innovative approaches in student education;

- A clear understanding of teaching agenda at local, regional or national level and experience of teaching students (informal or formal) in Midwifery;
- Ability to work independently and within a team environment including a willingness to travel e.g. work on and off campus for student education;
- As an NMC registrant you should maintain registration with the NMC whilst employed with the University of Leeds, confirming to your line manager by providing documentary evidence;

You may also have:

- A PhD / Professional or Education Doctorate, or close to completing, or equivalent experience in an appropriate discipline;
