Faculty of Arts

School of English

University Academic Fellow

Print Culture

The study of print culture has changed with the production of digital resources and new datasets; equally, digital modes of reading and writing have recast the material practices of print, allowing them to be understood anew. The School of English wishes to appoint a University Fellow in this exciting new area of research, one which recognizes the way that the humanities themselves are being reconfigured in the digital age.

You will contribute to the University's ambition to excel at REF2020, with a sustained record of internationally excellent, and some world-leading, publications. Acting as catalyst for collaboration across the School and also potentially across the Faculty, the Fellow will organise seminars with international speakers, network internationally, and build local collaborations. You will co-supervise PhDs and work on and contribute to undergraduate and postgraduate programmes in the School of English. You will also be expected to submit grant applications for personal fellowships, for example, an Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) early-career Fellowship; Leverhulme Fellowship; Horizon 2020, and, more particularly to the AHRC's themes of Digital Transformations, Science in Culture, or Translating Cultures and the ESRC's themes of Global Economy and Technology and Innovation.

The School of English provides a stimulating environment for work in this field. It has considerable expertise in this area across historical periods with international scholars working on the production of literary texts and on the material basis and practices that structure them. You will also have the opportunity to work with the Victorian printing presses located in the School's basement and engage in collaboration across the Faculty with the Centre for the Comparative History of Print (Centre CHoP - http://www.leeds.ac.uk/arts/info/125046/the_centre_for_the_comparative_history_of_print/).

You will have demonstrated research excellence in the broadly-defined field of print culture and in addition will have begun to develop a strong teaching profile derived in part from this expertise. You will also have a developed awareness of, and aptitude for, maximising the advantages offered by the funding landscape, including the impact agenda.

You will be exceptionally well placed to make a significant contribution to the School's research and grant capture, as well as its excellence in research-based teaching, and will be able to enjoy a thriving research community extending beyond the School of English into the wider Faculty of Arts.

Outstanding collections and archives are available in the Brotherton Library (<http://library.leeds.ac.uk/special-collections>), one of the leading research libraries in the UK.

Career Pathway: Successful completion of a 5 year probationary period leading to appointment to grade 9 Associate Professor.

University Grade 8 (£38,511 to £45,954)

Job Description

With a vision and drive to develop a prestigious internationally competitive research portfolio as well as a passion for undertaking research-led teaching you will make a significant impact on the performance, stature and profile of research and student education at The University of Leeds.

This University Academic Fellowship (UAF) is for future academic leaders providing an excellent opportunity to establish an academic career at a research intensive university and play a key role in our ambitious plans for the future.

You will embark on a structured five year development programme, successful completion of which will lead to your appointment as a grade 9 Associate Professor.

You will have a PhD (or equivalent qualification/experience), the ability to teach at both undergraduate and postgraduate level, as well as outstanding post-doctoral research experience in a relevant subject area. You will also have the potential to obtain competitive research funding, along with initiative, motivation and enthusiasm for supporting and advancing the University research and student education goals.

Main Duties and Responsibilities

Research, Innovation and Impact

- Pursue a programme of individual and collaborative research, resulting in high quality publications and a national and international profile and engaging with industry as appropriate to attract and co-ordinate major initiatives.
- Promote the integration of your own research area with other research interests and themes, in the school, faculty and University.
- Attract research income on an individual and collaborative basis according to an agreed plan, as appropriate to the field or discipline, to support high quality research activity.
- Develop a strategy to ensure that your research has the potential for impact beyond academia.

Student Education

- Undertake research-led teaching at undergraduate and/or postgraduate level, with engagement in continual improvement in response to student and other feedback.
- Contribute to the design, development and planning of modules and policy within the subject area as required.
- Work in line with the University's Partnership Agreement and with our students as members of a learning community to provide outstanding education and an excellent student experience.

Academic Leadership

- Contribute to the management of the school by taking on appropriate leadership, management and administrative responsibility.
- Lead academic initiatives and projects in research and student education which facilitate school, faculty and/or University development.

- Participate in the recruitment, management and development of staff as well as acting as a mentor to less experienced colleagues.
- Contribute to the development of the discipline or research area, e.g. through organisation of conferences or membership of key bodies setting the strategic direction of the area.

General

- Contribute to the development and achievement of University, faculty and school strategy within the context of an international, research-led university.
- Become a specialist in the field, developing and maintaining an external profile as appropriate to the discipline.
- Maintain own continuing professional development.
- Carry out the duties of the post in accordance with University policies, procedures, values and standards, including the Leadership and Management Standard.

This job description provides a framework for the role and it may be necessary for a University Academic Fellow to undertake any duties commensurate with the post as might reasonably be required.

Person Specification

Essential

- A PhD (or equivalent qualification) in a relevant field.
- A clear and compelling academic plan that will deliver academic and more general impact at an international level, in order to meet the criteria for progression to Associate Professor within the 5 year probationary period.
- Significant proven research experience within the academic discipline with a developing record of internationally excellent publications.
- A track record of gaining competitive research funding.
- Experience of presenting at national and international conferences and/or symposia.
- Evidence of building strong working relationships within and, as appropriate, beyond your own discipline and to contribute to successful projects and collaborations.
- The potential and commitment to undertake high quality and innovative teaching and gain a higher education teaching qualification or award.
- Experience of delivering and engaging with student education where opportunities have existed.
- A high level of interpersonal and communication skills, and a strong ability to communicate effectively in writing and verbally with students, academic and external audiences.
- The ability to lead projects and organise, balance and prioritise work commitments.

Desirable

- Success in gaining significant independent research funding.
- Experience of leading on projects and initiatives, including managing resources and conflicting priorities within challenging circumstances.
- A growing track record of successful and innovative teaching at both undergraduate and/or postgraduate level.
- Experience of involvement in postgraduate research supervision.
- Experience of working collaboratively with external partner organisations.
- Experience of mentoring less experienced colleagues.

University Values

All staff are expected to operate in line with the University's values and standards, which work as an integral part of our strategy and set out the principles of how we work together.
